

Informed change

Coventry

The information authority is the new single gatekeeper for information standards and data reporting requirements across the further education system that will make major reforms to data and information. Join us at the beginning and you'll ensure that information becomes a tool for change and transformation in FE.

The information authority is accountable to Government Ministers for establishing and regulating information standards and reporting requirements across the further education (FE) system. It is responsible for providing strategic leadership to the sector to ensure policy initiatives are delivered effectively and efficiently, and will make key decisions about what data should be collected and how it should be reported. The information authority board consists of senior officials and chief executives from government departments, non-departmental public bodies and learning provider representatives. Government Ministers have appointed an independent Chair to the board. The board is supported by a Secretariat that recommends and regulates by consent, and ensures board decisions are acted upon.

Head of the Information Authority Secretariat

£55,604 - £67,810 + benefits package

As an inspirational leader in your sector, you will be a key influencer for identifying and delivering reforms that will ensure the effective and efficient use of data and information created and used by the FE system to meet Government policy objectives. Your experience of developing and managing effective working relationships with senior officers in a broad range of public and private sector organisations ensures you have the interpersonal, influencing and communication skills needed to lead the development and operation of the Information Authority Secretariat.
